"Politics and the English Language" (1946) is an essay by George Orwell that criticised the "ugly and inaccurate" written English of his time and examines the connection between political orthodoxies and the debasement of language. The essay focuses on political language, which, according to Orwell, "is designed to make lies sound truthful and murder respectable, and to give an appearance of solidity to pure wind".

Politics and the English Language - Wikipedia

Orwell's main argument in Politics and the English Language is that language and thought act much like conjoined twins of the human psyche, and thus, "If thought corrupts language, language can also corrupt thought." If we disregard the health of one twin, we encumber the other.
